Miss Scannell:

The attached figures show the amounts expended for books, etc. in 1951, 1952 and 1953. I itemized those items which were not books in case you felt any of them should be omitted.

I did not want to call after the excitement of the explosion, so thought it best to mail the information to you.

Mrs. Dorothy Harrington

THE H. W. WILSON COMPANY

PUBLISHERS OF INDEXES AND REFERENCE WORKS

950-972 UNIVERSITY AVENUE • NEW YORK 52, N.Y.

January 1954

To the Librarian:

IMPORTANT—This Concerns Your Service Basis Rates

As you know, most of The H. W. Wilson Company's cataloging and indexing services are sold on the "service basis" method of charge, according to which each library pays in proportion to the use it makes of the services. In the case of the book indexes—the CUMULATIVE BOOK INDEX, BOOK REVIEW DIGEST, etc.—use is measured by the amount annually spent by the library for books and periodicals (exclusive of binding).

Under this system we should theoretically obtain a report of expenditures from every library every year; but in practice an annual review of expenditures and adjustment of charges would be unduly expensive and inconvenient to all concerned. It is therefore our custom to review libraries' expenditures at intervals of from three to six years. In doing this we ask for a report of each library's book and periodical expenditures for the preceding THREE years, in the belief that a three-year average gives a truer picture of a library's expenditures than the figures for a single year might do. (This procedure was approved by the Association of Research Libraries Committee on Indexing and Abstracting, working with us some years ago, and has been followed ever since.)

Since we last reviewed libraries' expenditures in 1948, it is now time for another report. Accordingly we enclose a form on which we ask you to report the total amounts spent by your library for books and periodicals, exclusive of binding, for the last three years (either calendar years or fiscal years, according to the nature of your records). Please also indicate the total and the average for the three years in the spaces reserved for these items, and return the form to us. (Needless to say all these figures will be kept entirely confidential.)

On the basis of the three-year average annual expenditure which you report to us, your library will be graded in one of the fourteen classes which we have established for rating purposes, and you will be notified accordingly. At the same time we will send you for your files a folder showing the fourteen classes and the book fund range for each, together with the rates by classes for all the Wilson book indexes.

In conclusion we should like to point out that it is necessary for us to receive a report from EVERY subscribing library, no matter how large or how small. Therefore your promptness in filling out and returning the enclosed form will greatly simplify our work and will be sincerely appreciated. A postage-paid envelope is provided for your reply. Thank you.

Sincerely yours,

THE H. W. WILSON COMPANY
